Calgary Health Foundation announces new interim President & CEO

Prominent Calgary business leader, Murray Sigler, takes the helm of Calgary Health Foundation

CALGARY – Respected Calgary business leader, Murray Sigler is the new interim President and Chief Executive Officer of Calgary Health Foundation.

Mr. Sigler’s vast career leading organizations to success will allow him to bring his experience to expand the impact of philanthropic partnership with Calgary’s health sector.

“Mr. Sigler brings a wealth of knowledge and experience that will position Calgary Health Foundation for the growth ahead,” said Board Chair, Sandy Edmonstone. “He understands Calgary and the community deeply, and his commitment to volunteerism has helped numerous organizations succeed.”

“I’m honored to join Calgary Health Foundation to help it continue its critical work at this important juncture,” said Mr. Sigler. “Calgary Health Foundation is well positioned for the opportunities ahead and I am looking forward to working with Alberta Health Services and the Government of Alberta as their philanthropic partner in tackling some of the big challenges the health sector faces.”

Prior to joining Calgary Health Foundation, Mr. Sigler was appointed interim CEO of the Calgary Chamber of Commerce in 2020. He served as the Executive Advisor of Sport Calgary beginning in 2019, after serving as CEO & Executive Director since January 2016. Murray is also Principal of Calgary-based Altius Corporation. Altius is a private investment and consulting firm serving clients in sport, aviation, tourism, technology and international commerce.

Until June 2016, Murray served at Axia Net Media Corporation (TSX “AXX” until going private in 2016) as President of Axia North America as well as Axia’s Executive Vice President.

Before joining Axia in 2009, Murray was Managing Director of the Government of Alberta’s UK Office for three and a half years. Prior to that, he was President and CEO of the Calgary Chamber of Commerce, and had an extensive career in the aviation industry, including as President and COO of Canadian Airlines International, CEO of Canadian Regional Airlines and initial President and CEO of Winnipeg Airports Authority. He is a former Board member of numerous transportation and aviation sector entities.

In April 2022, Murray was honored by the Calgary Chamber of Commerce as recipient of its Sherrold Moore Award, bestowed annually upon a long-standing Chamber member whose character embodies the true essence of community, volunteerism and humble dedication to the community. The Calgary Health Foundation is a key partner with Alberta Health Services (AHS) and is the fundraising entity for the city's four adult acute care hospitals, community health centres, as well as Carewest, a subsidiary of AHS that operates several continuing care sites. The organization also supports care in the community through a variety of programs and services.

Murray Sigler's appointment is effective November 3. Mr. Sigler takes over from Mike Meldrum, who announced his transition last month.
